FROM THE COMFORT
OF A CHAIR

Save the day. Donate blood.

Thirteen-year-old Patrick loves to draw, play video games, and spend time with his dog, Baby. And every six weeks, he makes time to receive a blood transfusion — the life-saving treatment he needs to fight Diamond Blackfan Anemia (DBA). DBA is a rare bone marrow disorder that makes Patrick's bone marrow unable to produce red blood cells. One day, Patrick will need a marrow transplant. For now, he and his family fight on, grateful every day for blood donors.
